In the next 10 years, HR Executives will face dramatic challenges. How will you address them?

Only 13% of employees worldwide are engaged at work, according to Gallup’s new 142-country study on the State of the Global Workplace. In other words, about one in eight workers -- roughly 180 million employees in the countries studied -- are psychologically committed to their jobs and likely to be making positive contributions to their organizations.

Wow, that’s quite a statement! It’s no wonder that more than one-half of HR professionals think that retaining and rewarding the best employees and developing the next generation of corporate leaders will be the GREATEST CHALLENGES. (Source: SHRM Forecast)

So, how do we “undo” the trajectory of the last 10 years?

At the Institute for Professional Excellence in Coaching (iPEC), we’ve trained countless industry professionals to lead with purpose and build cultures of engagement through our proprietary inside-out approach - the Core Energy Coaching™ Process.

We train HR Professionals to effectively lead themselves - and others - through the use of coaching skills. The only way to create sustainable change and exponentially greater results is to help individuals change the way they think and feel by helping them break through their limiting thoughts and emotional responses, and replace them with supportive, empowering beliefs that get them to take powerful and consistent action.

Be a trailblazer and come experience our first 3-day intensive, face-to-face weekend of iPEC's Coach Training Program. This will give you, the HR Leader, the opportunity to experience the power of Core Energy Coaching™ firsthand.
You will learn:
- Transformational coaching skills that help you get to the core of employees’ belief systems; challenge their paradigms; and shift their energy (and yours), and open up infinite new possibilities.
- You’ll also learn foundational theory and application to move a work culture forward with clear next steps, including the cultivation of high performance.
- Most importantly, in all live modules, you’ll coach and receive real-time feedback honing a stable of sustainable, conscious-driven tools come Monday morning.
