The more conscious that we become of what is around us, the more that we can make things better and eventually benefit from them. Something as small as recycling the aluminum cans on campus will really add up to huge numbers when the amount of soda and beer that is consumed is looked at. If we are able to begin a recycling cans program we could even have monthly trips to other states that pay for the cans and have our campus make some money off of this, allowing our campus to look better, feel better, and amuse us better.
