<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Course Title:</th>
<th>International Law</th>
<th>Term/ Semester/Year:</th>
<th>Spring 2010</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Course Catalog Number:</td>
<td>POLS2212.51</td>
<td>Instructor:</td>
<td>H.G. Brudner</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Course Description: In this course we will examine the nature, origin and development of International Law, the role of international entities and their rights, responsibilities, jurisdictions and conflicts.

Prerequisites (If any): Computer literacy, FDU student email address.

Goals and Objectives:
- Students should demonstrate an understanding/comprehension of empirical political information.
- Students should demonstrate an understanding of comparative laws and legal practices in the global environment.
- Students should understand the complications that face international legal agreements and actions.
- Students should demonstrate critical and analytical skills.
- Students should demonstrate effective research techniques.
- Students should demonstrate effective oral and written communication skills.

Course Topics: These themes are to guide your reading so that you will have sufficient background to participate in the classroom dialogue. You will be expected to allocate time to read, as you deem appropriate to your individual needs. These themes will undoubtedly be adjusted to suit the special interests of the class and the events of the day.
- Do not limit yourself to the designated chapters:
  1. Nature of International law (Chap. 1)
  2. Sources of International law (Chap. 1)
  3. The Sovereign State and Global Interdependence (Chap. 6 & 8)
  4. International Agreements (Chap. 3)
  5. War and War Crimes (Chap. 9 & 10)
  6. International Law and Terrorism (Chap. 10)
  7. International Law and the Individual (Chaps. 4 & 11)
  8. Territorial Questions and The Environment (Chap. 12).

| Readings as assigned            |