The third topic in the series is “The Intergenerational Workforce—What are the Implications and How do We Leverage Them?” Most organizations today are faced with the reality of a rapidly changing workforce, one characterized by multiple generations working side by side. This rapidly changing landscape presents not only challenges but opportunities for embracing and honoring the differences, as well as finding and leveraging the common ground. This session will explore the issues, the opportunities, the realities and “myths,” and the implications of the Intergenerational Workforce. We will use discussion and case studies to provide an action focus for all participants to collaborate and generate ideas and solutions.
